

It is ridiculous to abolish such rules! This would be for allowing monopolistic practices in television and radio. This will essentially allow for a single news source, which can then censor or ignore certain news stories, leading to a less informed American public. Democracy can only thrive if the public is informed. Insuring the availability of different news sources is required to give citizens the opportunity to be informed best. To abolish these laws is to spit in the face of the American government process! Keep these regulations to save America from an ignorant, uneducated future!
